TWENTY-SECOND DAY

Heath Gives an Account of Himself.

BUDD CONTRADICTS GOODWIN

Attorney McPike Controverts the Evidence of Stilwell—Mrs. Palmer's Divorce.

The evidence in the Heath case yesterday was listened to with great interest and attention, and especially was this true while the defendant was on the stand.

The defendant made a very fair impression, as a witness, answering in a clear tone of voice, and stood the rattling fire of Mr. Johnson's sharp, persistent and incisive cross-examination, much of which was devoted to laying a foundation for future contradiction.

H. C. McPike, a San Francisco attorney, was called to contradict the statements of Stilwell, that the latter did not hunt up Heath to get the story alleged to have been told by Jesse Morrow about seeing McWhirter in an altercation with a young married man; and that on the contrary, Heath sought out the newspaper man.

James H. Budd, after bashfully confessing that he had once strayed so far from the paths of rectitude as to be a member of congress, directly contradicted the testimony of Stuart Goodwin, the San Francisco theatrical man, as to what he said he knew about Heath.

The record of the divorce case between Mrs. Cora Palmer with her last matrimonial venture, "McGinty" Boland was produced to show at the time claimed she brought her then husband into town, August 29, 1892, they had been divorced a full month.

Other evidence was introduced to substantiate the claim that Heath had been the firm and consistent friend of McWhirter.

The defense announced at the close of the day that they had but two or three more witnesses to present in the case, and that they would in all probability rest their case on Monday forenoon.

THE MORNING SESSION.

At the opening of the court Judge Shaw made the following explanatory statement with regard to a ruling made during a sharp passage with Mr. Johnson during the interrogation of Judge Harris, while a witness, on the stand:

"In looking over the record I noticed that in making the ruling the day before yesterday in regard to the exclusion of the question put to Mr. Harris, the court used language which probably, I think necessarily, conveys a meaning not intended by the court.

As the language was used it would naturally convey the meaning that the court meant to charge some motive to the attorneys or parties in the case. The thought in the mind of the court was as to the motives and purposes of persons not connected with the case. The court therefore disclaims imputing any improper motive to the prosecution or persons connected with the prosecution.

"I think it is proper for the court to say this, as the attorneys have no chance to demand any such explanation. If the remarks seemed at all rude it is not owing to any intention to be rude, but owing to the natural impatience of the court, in a trial of this kind, which is sometimes severely taxed."

The court then directed the examination of witnesses, and Mrs. McWhirter was recalled to identify a hammer offered in evidence as similar to one used at her residence at the time of McWhirter's death.

Lew R. Williams, deputy clerk, was called to produce the judgment roll in the divorce case brought by Mrs. Cora Palmer against her husband, J. E. Boland. The judgment was rendered July 28, 1892, just a month before the death of McWhirter. This was to contradict Mrs. Palmer, who testified that she brought her husband in to the train that night; that they were separating after marital troubles and that she afterward secured a divorce from him.

Stewart Goodwin, of San Francisco, Harry Maynard's theatrical manager, was recalled and was cross examined for the purpose of laying a basis to impeach his testimony. An effort was made to get in a statement alleged to have been made by McWhirter to some woman prior to his death in effect that he had about come to the end of his string and had to go sooner or later and that when the end did come they need not look up the stream nor down the stream for him and that there would be a sensation but the court ruled it out peremptorily.

Witness denied that he had said to a man named Thompson, or "Young Dutchey" that Stilwell had promised him "stuff" to testify and that if he did not pungle the witness would "squeal."

Witness recognized Hon. J. H. Budd; saw him in J. C. Campbell's office in San Francisco during the recent trial in San Francisco. He denied at that interview he had said that he did not know Dick Heath, and never had seen him in his life.

H. C. McPike, attorney of San Francisco, stated that in December, 1892, Henry Bigelow and C. J. Stillwell of the Examiner came to his office saying they intended investigating the McWhirter case, one taking it on the theory that it was assassination and the other that it was suicide, and asked for letters of introduction to people in Fresno, which he gave.

He had mentioned to them that Heath, an old friend of his, had just come from Fresno; was well acquainted with the case and Fresno people, and that he gave them Heath's city address, which he gave them, and they wrote it down. Bigelow said that he knew Heath.

Mr. Johnson moved that this evidence be stricken out. Motion denied.

John McFarlane corroborated the testimony of F. W. Polley touching their whereabouts on Sunday evening, and that they went to Dunn's vineyard to work next morning.

Charles Bonner corroborated the evidence of other witnesses with regard to Heath's movements in town on that Sunday afternoon.

A. C. Warnekros testified that McWhirter purchased the pistol in evidence from him March 27, 1891.

Dr. J. C. Cooper stated that he was occupying a room in the second story of his residence on the corner of M and Stanislaus streets that night, his window being on the north side and looking out on Stanislaus, about sixty feet from and in sight of the alley running past the McWhirter premises in the next block north. He was awake when the shooting occurred. He heard no vehicle drive away, and saw no one come out of the alley.

James H. Budd was called to impeach Witness Goodwin, and stated that during the progress of the insurance trial at San Francisco last February, Goodwin came to Campbell's office, Campbell and witness being attorneys for the defense, with an improbable story, damaging to the plaintiff's case, which Judge Shaw ruled out. Mr Budd stated that Goodwin was closely questioned with regard to his knowledge of Heath, and there stated that he did not know him and never had seen him.

Richard S. Heath was then called and testified that he was a son of General R. W. Heath, a veteran of the Mexican war. The court ruled out testimony of the family history.

Heath's brother was accidentally drowned July 26, 1892, and on the 27th he left Fresno and went to San Francisco.

He had been friendly personally and politically with McWhirter, and never at any time or place referred to him as a s——— of a b———. He had an altercation with W. D. Grady in Monaghan's saloon, E. D. Edwards, W. H. Parker and Monaghan being present, during that summer, arising out of Mr. Grady's having applied opprobrious epithets to McWhirter. Heath resented this and finally slapped Grady. They were separated. Heath then stated the several positions of trust he had been employed in for ten years, and also that he had attended the Keeley institute in February, 1893.

August 28, 1892, he came in from the Curtis ranch with Frick to bring a load of hay to Henry's stable and to employ laborers, and went to see Tue Lee, in Chinatown, to hire men; the price was too high, and he went back to town to consult with others on the situation, and try and reduce the price, and talked with Bonner, Ball and others, and was around the business part of the town.

At no time of that day or night was he in the vicinity of McWhirter's residence; nor did he then or at any time engage in a conspiracy with Judge Harris, Reel Terry or any one to do McWhirter harm.

He saw Yue Lee's manager, Wong Hin, at the Grand Central about 6 o'clock. He had already sent Frick back to the Curtis ranch with one wagon, some men and a letter to Mr. Curtis. Went over to Chinatown about 9 o'clock to see the Chinaman again; talked with him for some time and they took a drink in the saloon, and then walked over toward the depot. He could not tell where they parted. He denied that he said to the Chinaman, "We'll do him up."

He then came back, had supper at the Opera restaurant; went to Scott's saloon to ask after John Henry, and then to the Monarch saloon; no one in there except Seaward behind the bar. Polley came in a few minutes later, they took a drink together and then went down toward the Grand Central. He talked with Polley about getting him a place at the Curtis ranch and loaned him a half dollar. He had no clubs or bottles of beer when he went into the Monarch saloon, nor did Polley.

He parted with Polley and started to go to bed, having already registered at the Grand Central, and on the way saw John Henry up near the Bodega saloon and went up and talked with him awhile; they then went into the saloon and drank; came out, walked back towards the saloon and then Heath went to bed, and did not leave the room until about 7 o'clock next morning, when he got up, and when he came down stairs he met J. R. White and George Rupert, who told him of the murder. He did not see Marion Childers until later; went to Henry's stable and changed hour of departure to 1 o'clock.

Defendant denied in toto the statement made by "Deadshot" Ward, that he called Heath a "hayseed"; that Heath had said that McWhirter ought to be killed, etc., or that he picked alfalfa hay seed off the defendant early in the morning; he was in bed at that hour.

He stated that he had not met Howard Wells at the fairground races in 1891, from the fact that at that time he was in San Francisco; never carried a pistol on his person in his life.

About a quarter of an hour after he heard of McWhirter's death, he met Childers, who told him that he (Heath) was suspected of committing the murder. He treated the matter as a joke, and asked Childers to come in and take a drink. He afterward became satisfied from his actions that Childers was circulating the report and spoke to some of his friends about it, and was angry about the matter.

He denied Wofford's story in every particular except that he might have spoken about buying hay; he had no recollection of it.

About 1 o'clock he and John Henry started for the Curtis ranch, and on the way called on Mrs. McWhirter, offered condolence, asked permission to be a pall bearer, and was told that that matter was in charge of her brothers, and he gave her his address at Sanger. She then spoke of the kind feeling McWhirter always had for the defendant. There were two elderly ladies present at the time, but he did not know them.

They then went to Barton's vineyard and stopped at the winery; saw the cellarman, Charlie Rossi, and thence went to the Curtis ranch, over fourteen miles from Fresno, arriving between 4 and 5 o'clock. He then went to Sanger and returned about 8 o'clock with mail, groceries, etc. About 8:15 the runaway of the mule team, testified to by other witnesses occurred, in which defendant got his hand hurt. It was about 9 o'clock before the team was returned to the barn, and he retired about 10 o'clock.

This being in contradiction of Witnesses Culver and Crow, he stated that he did not present a pistol at Culver's head on Monday night, nor at any time, and had never talked with either Culver or Crow to his knowledge.

Heath was shown the written statement made to Detective Bury, and said he was very angry at the time; did not make a detailed statement, and did not fix the exact time that he went to bed, and so stated when it was made.

He denied Policeman Johnson's story about his going into Henry's stable that night and swearing at some one to turn the gas out.

He quit Curtis about the 9th of September, and went to Parsons' place at his request; they were on good terms; he staid there two weeks; he had no knowledge that Parsons was, at Binsingame's suggestion, spying on him and trying to get a confession. He talked freely and frequently with Parsons about McWhirter's death; did not remember making the remark that McWhirter stood up like a man; possibly said so, for he regarded McWhirter a brave man. If he said so it was in approval of Parsons' remark, and not as a confession of guilt.

He explained having had his beard shaved because he was going to San Francisco, where he never wore full beard, and besides he was troubled with dandruff. He then remained in San Francisco until he went to Los Gatos to be cured of the liquor habit.

The story he told Stilwell and Bigelow was given him by Jesse Morrow and he talked with Parsons and Luttrell about it at the Lick house; afterwards told it to Stilwell and Bigelow and gave letters of introduction.

His second interview with Stilwell in Hearst's office was in January, 1893. Stillwell told him that there was nothing in Morrow's story; and that he and others had a theory that there were three men engaged in the murder; that one rang the bell to get McWhirter out and that the other two did the work. He said that they know who two of the parties were and that if the third one who rang the bell would come forward and tell what he knew, that he was authorized to give him $10,000 and a ticket to any part of the world and guarantee immunity from trial by the courts.

Defendant then asked who these two men were that were known, as he knew nearly every one in Fresno, and might be able to aid in locating the associate of these two. Stilwell said he could not divulge their names then. He said he had been given a check of $1000, and pulled out a handfull of gold, and said he would make a partial payment of $1000, and pay the rest at the close of the trial. Heath told him that he had no idea who had killed McWhirter, and offered to do anything he could to aid Stilwell in detecting the murderers. The next time he saw Stilwell was after his arrest, on the 13th of March, 1893.

Defendant then described the circumstances attending his arrest and transfer to Fresno; contradicted the statements of George W. Fuller; said he had not taken sides in the municipal political fight known as the "Triangle;" never saw witness Goodwin, and did not talk with Dr. Yancey; never had seen the clubs, mask or pistols until they were produced in court.

He was let to bail after the last trial about 1:45 A. M., and in the hurry to catch the train left a number of things at jail; gave them to Evans. Never had a silk handkerchief marked with indelible ink.

His mother marked his clothing, and witness exhibited to the jury the mark upon the shirt he wore.

Mr. Johnson conducted the cross-examination which was lengthy and exhaustive, going over every important particular of the direct, together with his evidence at the former trial, evidently with the view of rebuttal.

Defendant stated that he had not read over his evidence at the former trial recently; had no trade or profession; denied that he had said in Dobbs' saloon three or four days before the murder, Grady and Terry being present that McWhirter ought to be killed, and said that he had not seen them within a month prior thereto.

He recited his various employments for a number of years past and denied positively that he said he could get a highbinder to kill McWhirter for $50, and so said to Detective Bury when told him that he was suspected. He did not know a man named Geo. Hayden and did not see him in Chinatown that Sunday night. He knew T. L. Reed of Reedley; did not recollect that he was with Parsons and Luttrell at the Lick house interview; when Ward and Bury got his statement at the Curtis ranch, he spoke to Mr. Curtis about it and Curtis told him to make it as he was innocent, and he then made it.

On redirect, he stated that he remembered taking a drink with a Chinaman and certain persons named at the Grand Central about 6 o'clock.

On the re-cross he said he heard Grady making certain violent remarks about McWhirter the morning of his murder, and told him he had forgotten the instincts of a gentleman in maligning the dead, and left him. He was not at the funeral nor at the coroner's inquest; was in town one day while it was in progress.

Willie Blasingame, recalled, stated that George McWhirter had used a 32-calibre rifle about the McWhirter about the premises about two years before the murder.

E. D. Edwards, recalled, testified that after the Democratic primaries in May, 1892, and the death of McWhirter, Grady, while in liquor, was abusing McWhirter. Heath took it up as a friend of McWhirter's, and blows followed. They were parted by those present. Grady had a lame arm at the time.

John Reichman, cashier of the Farmers' bank, testified to the good character of Wong Hin, manager of the Tue Lee Company. The court then adjourned to 9:30 a. m. tomorrow. The defense stated that they expected to close the direct evidence by noon.

AN INTERESTING LECTURE.

Miss K. M. Ball Talks to Teachers On Art.

The city teachers assembled yesterday afternoon at the High School building to listen to a lecture on art by Miss K. M. Ball, a celebrated art student and teacher of drawing in the east.

She said that drawing was to art what penmanship is to literature. Children lack no opportunity for the study, as everything made by man belongs to the province of art. There is an educating influence to be obtained almost equal to that of literature or any other well recognized branch, and this feature is the one that needs attention in the American schools.

The lecturer proceeded to give illustrations of the exercise or the lack of exercise of the artistic taste in building, home decoration, etc. According to her, very few men have any taste, and a woman's is shown better by the ornamentation of her home than by her dress. The aesthetic taste may be developed in children as truly as any other if the correct method is pursued.

In the first work in drawing Froebel's form study is followed, the children learning and drawing the forms, such as cube or cylinder, and then drawing objects based upon them. The child has a chance to express his individuality; a variety of expressions being the result of different powers of observation.

On the walls of the room at the High School were exhibitions of Miss Ball's system of drawing, arranged for the different grades of pupils. Several county teachers attended the lecture, and all agreed that it was an able one.

A Woodmen's Camp.

A camp of Woodmen of the World will be instituted in Fresno at an early date with an exceptionally strong charter list. Judging from all reports the order of Woodmen is a deservedly popular one in all the cities and towns where organized, its beneficiary as well as the social and fraternal advantages being strong points in its favor. The State organizer has the matter in charge.

Organized Revolt in the Democratic Party.

CLEVELAND TO BE REPUDIATED.

Western and Southern Democrats Uniting to Withdraw from the Old Party.

WASHINGTON, March 31.—The Presidents veto of the Bland bill has resulted in a proposition for a national convention for the west and south to form a new political party based on a demand for the free coinage of silver.

The propisition comes from certain radical Democratic Congressmen who believe the time has arrived when the party's salvation in the west and south demands it should repudiate once and forever the eastern domination on financial politics. The western and southern Democrats who are at the head of this movement declare that the veto of the Bland bill shows that the administration has set its face toward a single gold standard.

Representative McLaurin (Democrat, South Carolina,) has taken the initiative step. He has prepared a proposition, and it will be followed, he says, by a call signed by the Democratic silver congressmen. Mr. McLaurin says he has talked with many of the southern and western members of congress and he had yet to find a single democrat who has not agreed with him that the time has come when eastern financial ideas must be repudiated. He said that in the fight, he believed, that was to follow, the dividing line would be the Alleghany mountains and the Potomac river. The south and west against the east. Party lines would not necessarily be drawn. Members of all parties would be invited. The issue would be solely a monetary one. Representative Bland said the plan had not yet been submitted to him. He was inclined to regard it as chimerical, but said the Democrats of the south and west would never again be sold. They would put none but tried and true silver men on guard hereafter.

THE DISPENSARY TROUBLE.

No Further Bloodshed but the Situation Very Grave.

COLUMBIA, S. C., March 31.—South Carolina is in a state of rebellion. Fortunately today passed without any further bloodshed, but the situation is considered by the coolest heads as being very grave. Governor Tillman is very much worried and has telegraphed orders to nearly every military company in the state to proceed here at once, the intention being to mass all the troops possible together to go to Darlington. At Orangeburg today J. M. Stokes who was defeated for congress at the recent election, made a passionate harangue and organized a company of 100 men to go to the support of Tillman. It is the governor's purpose to mobilize 12,000 men at Darlington, but he finds the task difficult in the extreme, as nearly all the state troops are in sympathy with the citizens and will not respond to the Governor's call. The affair has intensified a bitter feeling in this state, and not in thirty years has there been such an estrangement between different factions and elements of South Carolina.

The Chronicle's Day.

SAN FRANCISCO, March 31.—Today was the San Francisco Chronicle's children's day at the Midwinter Fair. The public school children have already had a day at the fair under the patronage of the Examiner, when 70,000 children saw the fair. Today all the schools of the state were included in the invitation extended by the Chronicle. It is safe to say that the largest crowd of juvenile humanity ever brought together on the Pacific coast was that which from the early morning hours until afternoon thronged to the big fair. An excellent programme of athletics and music had been prepared for the amusement of the children, and refreshments of fruit, crackers, soda, and the like, were at the free disposal of all.

On the March.

EAST PALESTINE, March 31.—Having breakfasted satisfactorily Coxey's army broke camp at 9 o'clock this morning and resumed their march with 134 men in line.

LONG VIEW, Tex., March 31.—The Frye division of the Coxey army, 600 strong, arrived this morning. It was transferred under an armed escort of citizens to the Texas Pacific train and started for Texarkana.

Military Preparations.

DENVER, March 31.—At all the armories in the state militiamen have assembled, ostensibly to guard the arms and ammunition. Ninety-day men are being enlisted to recruit companies, and the governor is expected to make another attempt to take the city hall. The police force is excited tonight over a rumor that the city hall will be attacked before morning. A strong guard is kept there.

Bismarck's Birthday.

BERLIN, March 31.—The 81st birthday of Prince Bismarck occurs tomorrow and will be celebrated with great enthusiasm. Every train brings letters and gifts to Friedrichsruh. Twelve ladies presented Prince Bismarck with an illuminated address, signed by 10,000 women and maidens. The emperor sends congratulations and re-named the heights near Metz after Bismarck.

Only a Joke.

PETALUMA, Cal., March 31.—While a Chinese fisherman was sitting on the wharf here this morning fishing, a young man named Conniff crept up behind him and pushed him into the river. The Chinese was drowned. Conniff was arrested. He claims it was all a joke.

A crusade against expensive funerals is going on in New York city. As matters stand now only the well-to-do can afford to die.

The San Jose Mercury makes a bull by remarking that "Grover has resumed his great role as a bull in the china shop." Grover is not smashing things in that China shop; he is mending them to suit the notions of the slant-eyed proprietor.

The California orchardist excuses the breadth of his smile when reading news of disaster to the Eastern fruit crops by the philanthropic reflection that the people "back there" will not have to suffer for fruit. California will have a plenty for all.

A Hanford orchardist reports, in the Journal of that place, that the apricot crop of that locality was almost entirely destroyed by recent frosts. This is evidently due to the lower altitude of that portion of the valley. Very little, if any, damage from frost has been reported in this county. In fact the prospect was never better for a heavy yield of fruit of all varieties.

The Republican publishes more news this morning concerning the negotiations of the board of directors of the Central California Raisin and Dried Fruit association with Chicago capitalists for the purpose of securing sufficient money to control and handle next year's crop. This enterprise will probably displease the Expositor, which appears to print the news only by authority of some one else. The report given out by the directors today fully confirms the report of these negotiations given exclusively in The Republican a few days ago, which the Expositor attempted to call into question.

A vast quantity of water is daily flowing to waste in this county which should be utilized for the purpose of irrigation. Now is the time to irrigate. Vines and trees may not show the need of it at present, but they will show the effect of the dry season later on, when the fruit is maturing. Late irrigation is damaging to the quality of the fruit, but a thorough soaking of the ground at this time will result in the production of heavier crops of a superior quality. A great deal of grain which is threatened by the continued dry weather is also situated so that it can be made to yield a good crop by flooding. There appear to be a good many people in this section now who do not fully appreciate the value of water applied at the proper season.

The Republican's dispatches this morning bring the news that there is to be a new Democratic party—a party whose chief plank will consist in the renunciation of Grover Cleveland and his goldbug policy. It has been evident for some time that a general revolt was likely to occur; that the Democratic party could not much longer retain its present organization under the terrible strain which is the result of contending forces within its ranks and the domination of a leader who recognizes no authority but his own will. Whether the new party will be able to completely destroy the old organization remains to be seen, but it will certainly be in a better position to go before the people of the country than will any party which must carry the burden of Grover Cleveland's record as the most bigoted and sectional chief executive that it has ever been this country's misfortune to select.

If Mr. Wise were nominated and elected we have no doubt that some good man could be found to fill his place as collector of the port. The Democratic party is not short of good material for that office, but a strong and able candidate for governor is not so easily found.—Oakland Times.

There must be a wide difference of opinion as to what constitutes a strong and able candidate, or some malign influence has recently been at work on the aspirations of several prominent citizens, whose names were before the public more than half a year ago as candidates for the gubernatorial nomination on the Democratic ticket. Does the Times consider such names as Murphy, Butler, Langford and others so unsuitable for the distinguished honor of heading the Democratic ticket, that it is necessary to pull Mr. Wise out of the fat place provided for him by the generous Mr. Cleveland, to star in the comedy soon to be put on the boards by the California Democracy?

Col. Aldace F. Walker, formerly a member of the Inter-State Commerce commission and since chairman of the Western Traffic association, and consequently a practical student of the inter-state law with a double experience, declares in the April Forum that the law has proved a failure. "The simple fact is this," he says, "that the scheme as arranged could not possibly be made to work. The commission was not a court, although it tried to assume a judicial attitude; it was not an executive, although it endeavored to make rules and enforce regulations. For a time it cut quite an important figure in the public eye. The roads were at first inclined to accept its views of policy; its ideas have been quite generally sound and judicious; when reluctance to conform to them was observed, the oversight was quietly ignored. But finally the defects in its constitution became apparent and the disregarding of its recommendations became not the exception but the rule. For this unfortunate situation Congress alone is to blame. Two courses were open: either to establish an administrative body, to collect information in the way of statistics and tariffs, and to enforce conformity to what may be called the publicity features of the law, leaving injured citizens to their actions for damages; or to establish a body with judicial authority, a court of interstate commerce, having power of process and of judgment, to which either shippers or carriers might go for valuable relief. Congress did neither of these things." This being the situation in regard to this important law, it would appear to be the duty of congress to at once take the matter in hand. The Interstate Commerce Commission should be vested with such power as is necessary for the performance of the functions for which it was created. Government control of common carriers is a necessity of the times.

Winn, Geary Court, S.F., and hundreds of others who have used it in constipation. One letter is a sample of hundreds. Elkington, writes: "I have been for years subject to bilious headaches and constipation. Have been so bad for a year back have had to take a physic every other night or else I would have a headache. One bottle of J. V. S., put me in splendid shape. It positively controls constipation."

MEETING OF THE WHIST CLUB

Another Chess Tournament in Progress—Something About Morbid Women.

The ladies of the Kindergarten club were greatly pleased with the success, social as well as financial, of their dance last Thursday. The attendance was very large, and the 400 were well represented. The net proceeds amounted to $156, which sum has been handed over to the secretary of the board of directors of the free kindergarten, for the benefit of which institution the party was given. Those who attended enjoyed themselves so well that they would no doubt be quite willing to contribute to some o her worthy object where the exercise of liberality would result so pleasantly.

Merry little maskers were those Friday night at Kutner hall at the children's masquerade and fancy dress ball, given by Mrs. Souther. A good-sized audience was present to see the little ones go through the various dances. The grace and ease with which they carried themselves reflected much credit upon their teacher, Miss Mary Hopkins. The grand march was led by Ralph Swain, "The Court Gentleman," and Camille Lytton as "Folly." Leona Henley as "The Butterfly" wore a pretty costume. Earle Hughes, as "A Gentleman of Ye Olden Times," was neatly dressed, Johnnie Keshisyan, as the "Chinaman," sustained the character very creditably. The children were delighted with the novelty of the affair.

The Festina Lente Club of San Francisco, the special mission of whose members it is to eat stars on artificial ice, is in high glee because it has secured Mrs. Grover Cleveland as a patroness. I hope that this toadying custom will soon fall into innocuous desuetude, to quote a favorite expression of the husband of the distinguished patroness of the Festina Lente Club. It is a truckling and coarse spirit that prompts the governing bodies of social organizations to importune persons who have no advantage but social prominence to become patronesses or patrons. What benefit Mrs. Cleveland's connection with this ice-spoiling society as patroness can be to it is not easy to discern, unless it will enhance the importance of the club in the opinion of a few nincompoops who worship position.

Among the coming events of this week is the "Hygienic High Tea" to be given by the young ladies of the senior class of the high school, at Kutner Hall, next Friday evening. The girls have proceeded very mysteriously with their arrangements for the event, and we who have been invited are all dying with curiosity to know what is in store for us. It is said that the refreshments will consist of hot water, graham wafers, milk and liver pills, but I don't consider the source of this rumor authoritative. All I can say with certainty is that there will be dancing and a good programme of music and recitations.

Dress reform has now got into poetry. Here is a sample of the way Pegasus rides rough shod over the new order of things:

I hate the loose blouse of coarse serge, blue or black,
That looks like a dishcloth and its like a sack;
I hate the thick gaiters, with wrinkles acute,
That makes still more clumsy the "Rational" boot;
And the gray worsted gloves, and the shapeless felt hat,
I hate even more than the ill-fitting spat;
Whilst the balance of hate I so frankly assort,
I keep for that horror, the "bifurcate skirt"—
A garment whose ugliness ought to depress
The most ardent admirer of "Rational Dress."

It now remains for the heaven-born muse to inspire one of the happy women who can find their pockets and have solved the problem of existence on a rainy day.

When Professor Kelter of the Athletic Club came down from the bay he brought with him a dozen fine white vests. Friday night he attended the Scotchmen's ball, and thought he would fill the souls of his pupils with envy, a number of them having expressed the intention of attending, by wearing one of the vests. What was his surprise upon arriving there to find eleven of his pupils strutting about with vests very much like his own. A closer examination convinced him that they were his, and that the boys had played a joke on him. The snowy garments seemed to have a decided attraction for the girls, and the homage that should have all been bestowed upon the Professor was divided among him and his pupils. It is said it will go hard with the latter at their next boxing lesson.

Quite a number of women have been attending the Heath trial. There doesn't appear to me to be anything edifying in the spectacle of a man being tried for murder, and I conclude, therefore, that it is nothing but a vulgar and reprehensible curiosity that attracts them to the court room. This remark does not, of course, apply to the ladies related to the principals in this drama, who, for that matter, would probably prefer to be anywhere but where their duty demands their presence. It has always seemed to me that women who attend these "court functions" must be very coarse-fibered and only one degree less unpleasant than those females who bring flowers to murderers.

GEORGIANNA GABBLE.

"THE SPIDER AND FLY"

Entertains a Large Audience at the Barton.

The Barton opera house was comfortably filled last evening and the audience well entertained by M. B. Leavitt's spectacular production, the "Spider and Fly." It is certainly one of the best of its kind on the road, introducing spectacle, burlesque, vaudeville, pantomime, opera, comedy and acrobatic novelties.

The company includes many shapely females, who dance, sing and entertain generally, in a charming manner.

Will Mandeville is the chief comedy character as Horatio Pickles, an author in hard luck. Mandeville is unique in his style of comedy, and he evoked much laughter last evening.

The Putnam sisters carried off the honors in a vocal way. They possess sweet, harmonious voices, and sing the latest catchy airs. They, by the way, assume the characters of the spider and fly.

The dancing was of an exceptionally graceful and skillful character and the kicking particularly altitudinous. Many specialties have been added since the company's last appearance here and the performance was really enjoyable.

The next attraction will be Joe Grismer and Phoebe Davis in "The New South," on next Tuesday evening. Grismer and Davies' popularity here is alone guarantee of a good house.

THE SALOON ORDINANCE.

MR. WELTY REPLIES TO MR. CHURCH.

And Shows Why the County Retail Liquor Ordinance Is Not Fully Enforced.

EDITOR REPUBLICAN:—Deeming the article in the Fresno Expositor of March 26th from District Attorney Church to be a reflection on my integrity as an officer and a citizen, I desire herewith to make a full statement of the facts relative to the matters over which Chairman Letcher and Mr. Church have engaged in acrimonious discussion.

I have no hesitancy in saying that Mr. Church's statements are in the main absolute perversions of the truth, and I am prepared to substantiate my allegations by a third party, who was present when my interview with Mr. Church occurred. From Mr. Church's card I excerpt the following:

"And now as to the statement of Welty: Probably a month ago two men called at this office whom I did not then know, one of whom I now presume to have been Deputy Constable Welty, and said he had been in the Lodge saloon on a Sunday and had bought four drinks of whisky and paid for them. I asked him to reduce the statement to writing, and offered to do it for him at the time, and asked him to sign it, which he declined to do, but said he would try to have some other person do it, and for this purpose would call again. He did not call again on me, but it seems thought better of it afterward, and did go before Crichton and make a sworn statement."

The true incidents of that interview are vastly different from Mr. Church's account. As a matter of fact, I, accompanied by Clark Wood, a policeman of this city, went to Mr. Church's office and informed him that I, in company with two other persons, had secured admission to the Lodge saloon on Sunday, February 25th, and obtained and paid for drinks over the bar, the barkeeper partaking of one of the drinks.

I told Mr. Church what evidence I had to prove a violation of the ordinance, and he said that some one would have to make out a complaint. I then told Mr. Church that I was not a lawyer, but that if he would draw up the complaint in legal form I would sign it. Mr. Church then said that he would have a talk with the Board of Supervisors and attend to the matter later.

Strange to say the district attorney, after having thus been duly apprised of the infraction of the law, did not draw up any complaint for my signature until about one month later and after my affidavit to the facts herein stated were published in a card from Supervisor Letcher.

Mr. Church's statement that he did not, at the time the information was given him, know Clark Wood or myself, is certainly a singular admission when we stop to consider that I, as a deputy constable, have had many transactions with him as the district attorney.

It is also ridiculous to presume that Mr. Church did not know Clark Wood, for Mr. Church in his dual official capacity, is also mayor of the city of Fresno, and Mr. Wood is a policeman in the employ of the city and has been personally acquainted with Mr. Church for the past two years.

Mr. Church was also cognizant of previous attempts on the part of the officers to punish saloon men who violated the ordinance. For instance shortly after the law went into operation I arrested William Nahey for keeping his bar room open contrary to the provision of the ordinance. Mr. Fahey evinced a disposition to resist arrest and roundly abused me, but, however, he appeared before Justice Austin, who discharged him on the ground that the ordinance was defective.

Mr. Church is a member of the license committee of the board of supervisors and the legal adviser of that body. If the ordinance was or is defective on his shoulders rests the blame.

Mr. Church has never shown any inclination to enforce the law, and even now D. J. Canty is permitted to keep his bar room at the Grand Central hotel open constantly, under instructions from the district attorney. At any rate, Mr. Church has so stated before the Board of Supervisors While Mr. Canty is probably not dispensing liquors beyond the prescribed hours, he certainly violates the ordinance by keeping open, as will be understood by reference to section XI of the saloon ordinance, one of the provisions of which is that saloon keepers shall keep the same closed and business suspended until 6 o'clock of the succeeding morning, and no person or persons except the proprietor or proprietors thereof and his or their employes shall be allowed to remain therein, or in any compartment or annex thereof, during said time.

I have no desire to attack Mr. Church's veracity, but he has made glaring misstatements in his card, as I am willing to make affidavit. If Mr. Church seeks to do his entire duty as district attorney, he has had abundant opportunity to prosecute parties who have violated the ordinance, and his statements with regard to the Lodge saloon complaint are positively contrary to the facts.

Constables and other officers who are compelled to arrest liquor dealers owe their places to the people, and when there is no prosecution of the offenders there is certainly no reason why the officers should incur the enmity of those people by further arrests. Very respectfully,

JOHN L. WELTY.

RAISIN COMMITTEE MEETING

The Deal With Chicago Capitalists Will Probably Be Completed.

The board of directors of the Central California Raisin and Dried Fruit Association met yesterday afternoon at the Hughes Hotel. The full board was present, consisting of the following gentlemen: W. F. Rowell, chairman; Carroll Ghent, secretary; A. B. Butler, William Forsyth, L. F. Monteagle, A. E. Smith, W. H. Hodgkin, D. M. Pyle, Louis Einstein, W. S. Porter and P. McRae.

A proposition has been submitted to the board of directors by the agent of certain eastern capitalists with a tender of all the money necessary to control the raisin crop of California. This proposition has been under the consideration of the board for the last three meetings and has been discussed at great length.

Specifications of the details have been drawn up by the board as understood by them, and will be taken east on Monday to be submitted to the capitalists. As the matter now stands, the board of directors believe that arrangements can be made whereby money enough can be provided to control the entire crop, in which case the inevitable result must be the absolute control of prices, to the great benefit of every producer of raisins in the state.

The specifications as drawn up by the board, having first to be passed upon by the capitalists at the other end, cannot yet be submitted to the public through the press. But they expect to hear from these parties within two weeks, and as soon as all the points have been mutually agreed upon every grower will be thoroughly acquainted with all the details of the plan.

This is a very large and important question, and the board asks the interested public to have as much patience as possible, as nothing is being left undone to find a satisfactory solution of the difficulties besetting the raisin question. The board is composed almost exclusively of growers, whose interests are identical with the interests of every grower in the state.

This plan proposed does not interfere in any way with any man's private business as a raisin packer as long as he conforms to business principles as to competition in selling goods.

Alex Gordon handed in his resignation as a member of the board, and it was accepted.

LITTLE SUN YING

LOCATED AT LAST IN PASO ROBLES.

Sheriff Scott Goes After Her—Ung Sing Not Expected to Live.

Ung Sing, who was accidentally shot Thursday night during a raid of officers in Chinatown, is growing worse, and cannot survive much longer. The physician at the hospital wanted to perform an operation on the Chinaman, which might have saved his life, but the fellow would under no circumstances permit it.

There appears to be no doubt that Ung Sing is one of the highbinders who, upon pretense of being Sun Ying's friends, manufactured a straw bond and got her out of jail, after which they conveyed her to a safe place, with the purpose of compelling her to continue the life of a slave in a brothel.

The persons interested in the girl have never desisted from their search and a day or two ago received information that she had been taken by her captors to Paso Robles. Sheriff Scott left yesterday for that place to recover her and bring her back to this city. There is a trumped up charge of grand larceny against Sun Ying, but it is not likely her accuser will press it, in view of the significant events succeeding her abduction.

As for Ung Sing, he has made no change in his statement accusing Wong Ah Juey of having fired the shot that hit him. Wong Don Hing, against whom a complaint of assault with intent to commit murder was filed at the same time as the one against Wong Ah Juey, was arrested yesterday, and gave bonds for his appearance. It is almost certain that Ung Sing is either mistaken or is lying in this matter.

Sallie—Say, Johnnie, you are right. It makes me laugh to think what a bargain I got in groceries at B. T. Scott's.

Harry, I simply wish to state a few plain facts to you. That is, B. T. Scott sells flour and sugar cheaper than any other house, and does the business of the town in groceries.

I'm spilin' for blood and must have it, but if I can't get it I'll just hitch up Old Dolly and drive thirty miles to B. T. Scott's and buy my groceries.

Oh! Ah! What's the matter? Are you sick? No; but the way they are selling flour and sugar at B. T. Scott's store.

B. T. Scott has about $12,000 more of groceries on hand, of which he is giving the public a grand benefit.

GREAT MEDICAL DISCOVERY.

A Painless and Infallible Cure for Rupture.

A most important fact in medical science has been discovered in recent months, that is, the cure of rupture or hernia—not by a painful and dangerous operation, but by the simple injection of a medicine in the required parts, which excites an irritation and then a complete adhesion of the canal and a cure of the rupture. This treatment was perfected by an eminent French specialist, and has been introduced into the United States only recently. This is an ailment that all who wear trusses know is looked on by physicians as incurable, and the usual advice has heretofore been, "Wear a well fitting truss is all you can do."

This treatment is now being effectively used by certain physicians in San Francisco with great success. Drs. Deardorff & Davidson of this city are personally acquainted with these physicians and say they are thoroughly reliable. Speaking of this treatment for rupture, the doctors said to a REPUBLICAN reporter:

"The treatment is not painful, and from personal experience we are able to say it is about absolutely reliable. An important factor is that it does not interfere with the patients' work, as is the case with the old treatment. We have experimented with it for some months now and can recommend it to those afflicted with rupture, for it has done its work in every case."

Drs. Deardorff & Davidson have procured this medicine, and patients may be treated here and avoid the expense of a trip to the city. So confident are they of the efficacy of this treatment, that they will attend patients and ask no fee until they are cured. Those afflicted with the trouble may in advance inform themselves concerning the treatment by communicating with those already cured. The doctors will also be glad to answer any questions they may be asked. These doctors are too well known to need any introduction. They are men of skill and reputation. When such a dangerous and painful disease as rupture can be permanently cured in so painless and rapid a manner, many thus afflicted will no doubt avail themselves of this beneficent remedy.

DESTRUCTION OF VALUES.

The White Front Stores Again Come to the Assistance of the Purchasing Public.

During the present and ensuing month people must purchase new goods. They have no choice. The spring is here. Summer is approaching. So the White Front Stores have decided, as will be seen by consulting their half-page advertisement in today's REPUBLICAN, to inaugurate a grand spring opening sale at this time when it will do the purchasing public some good, and not to wait until the season is past to then sell the left over goods.

This sale will surpass in startling revelations concerning prices and values anything that has ever occurred here. The goods are all new and stylish, and the prices will be surprisingly new and exceedingly popular. So tremendous are the reductions in prices, it is expected that the entire population of the San Joaquin valley will be attracted to the White Front Stores during the sale.

FRESNO'S TRIUMPH

The County Shines at the Midwinter Fair.

IT OUTSTRIPS ITS COMPETITORS

What a Republican Representative Saw Under the Dome of the Horticultural Building.

Of course every Fresnoan who has visited the Midwinter Fair at San Francisco readily recognizes that the voting for the cups in the general exhibit of the counties is a negative rather than a positive indication of the merits of the displays. Fresno with a little over a thousand votes would seem to be distanced utterly by counties which have already a vote exceeding 50,000. Yet the very first thing which the average visitor notices is that Fresno has not only an individual and unique position beneath the big dome in the Horticultural Building, but that the county's display, without this adventitious attraction, is easily the best of all, beautiful beyond compare.

It is, perhaps, a fortunate circumstance that Fresno was so late in installing its exhibits. Time had been allowed for the other county exhibits to be written up and written down; they had been lumped together and had a general aspect of sameness, while everyone was kept wondering what Fresno's display would be like, when that inner dome beneath the big glass dome came to be occupied. Those who have seen the fair since the work of installing Fresno's display has been completed will be apt to feel, as I did yesterday, that the managers, like the lord of the Scriptural feast, had kept the good wine till last.

When the Fresno county people visit the fair on Fresno Day, in the coming week, they will agree that there is yet another matter in which the county has been fortunate. The handsomest display, that is to say Fresno's, occupies a central position in the handsomest of the fair buildings. For while some of the other structures are pretentious and imposing enough, the Horticultural Building is architecturally beautiful, and has less of the gingerbread gilt-and-tinsel, circus-car appearance than any of the others.

Fresno county's luck does not end here. The Horticultural Building, in which the raisin county is "at home," is close to the tall electric light tower, a conspicuous landmark for any part of the grounds. Moreover, the Powell, Sacramento, Geary and McAllister street cars all have their termini within bow-shot of the tower and the dome. There is no fear of a nervous woman or an ordinarily intelligent child missing the way or getting lost.

Miss Nellie Boyd, who was Fresno's lady commissioner at Chicago, assists Thomas E. Hughes, the "Father of Fresno county," in receiving visitors and explaining the exhibits. Everyone who has seen Miss Boyd knows that the lady has great conversational gifts. It is not every talker who is a good cicerone, but Miss Boyd can put her audience through the entire exhibit in half an hour and make them feel that they had been familiar with the exhibit from childhood.

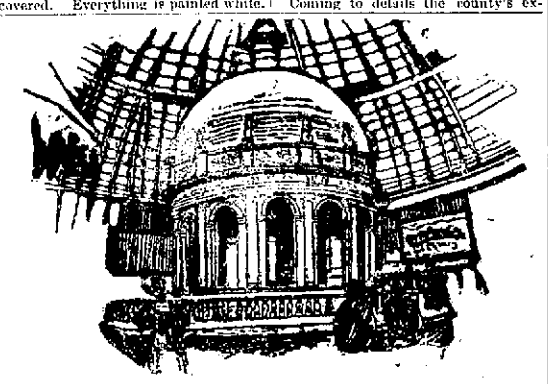

Pointing to a banner on which Fresno's low death rate was conspicuously set forth, Miss Boyd said smilingly: "We have flung our banners to the breeze that Fresno is the healthiest county in the State. We have placarded the fact that Fresno's mortality is only 8.4 per 1000, while Sacramento's is 13 and Los Angeles' 17. No one has called us down yet."

A word as to the general impression conveyed by the county exhibit before details are touched on. Under the vast glass dome the smaller dome of the county building shines with a rich creamy white, where the sunlight catches on the mock-oranges with which the dome is covered. Everything is painted white. Coming to details the county's exhibit includes not only dried fruits but even to the jack-rabbit perched on the apex, and his kindred ranged around the rotunda. The "critters" are all in one attitude, raised on their hind legs, their paws drooping over their breasts and their ears pricked as if in nervous expectation. Around the amphitheater, of the term may be so used, are the exhibits of Tulare, "Baby" Kings, Santa Cruz, Mariposa, San Louis Obispo and Sonoma. All are dwarfed by Fresno's dome, and become, so to speak, annexes. These counties have meritorious exhibits, as exhibits, but when it comes to the tout ensemble, they are not "in it," except as collateral evidence that California is the modern Garden of Eden.

This may seem to be one of those comparisons which are proverbially odious, but the candid visitor cannot escape the conclusion, even if he does not let fall the remark.

There is a little work yet to be done in filling up the windows between the graceful Ionic columns of Fresno's rotunda, but this can be done in a few hours, and then the display will be complete.

The oranges and lemons are all of the last winter's crop, and in splendid condition, free from any trace of scale or frost-nip.

The dried fruits are of course abundant, and from an artistic standpoint are the finest on the grounds; in fact the only thoroughly commercial exhibit is from Fresno county. The "blue ribbon" exhibit of the Noble Brothers, shown at Chicago, is one attraction. So is a framed "picture" of dried fruits, and the design of the First National Bank, worked out in raisins and figs. The frame of Marshal & Wilson nurseries is probably the finest piece of work ever done in dried fruits.

The display of cereals is fully up to the standard of the other counties, and the figs are the largest to be seen anywhere. Of wines, the Barton, Rogers, Kirby and St. Hubert vineyards are all represented, and there is a fine display of both sweet and dry wines. Where so many wines are found in the displays it seems invidious to particularize, and it is only possible to give a few of the more striking displays here and there. A list of all the deserving exhibits would require columns of space, which are not available in a general inspection, such as has been alone attempted in this notice. Even the winged Mercury, bearing the county banner, and carved by a Fresno youth, can only be mentioned en passant.

Every visitor will be sure to have his attention riveted by the handsome ornamental vases filled with pampas plumes. These vases are the full height of a man, and are made of the Sequoia gigantea from the forests of Fresno county. The vases are extremely graceful in form, and the surrounding crest of plumes completes the agreeable impression.

One of the curious exhibits is a specimen of cured tobacco leaves, an experiment so far as this county is concerned. This exhibit was favorably noticed at Chicago.

Ladies visiting Fresno county's home beneath the dome are sure to pause before a display of marvelously beautiful lace work. It is a darned net, the production of Miss M. H. Berry, a sister of Fulton G. of that ilk. The lady is 81 years old, but it would seem that it is with her as with Moses of old—the eye is not dim nor the natural strength abated. Miss Berry also did the lace work for the portico. A banner of yellow silk, by Spencer of Fresno, with the leaf and vine of the grape in old gold, is a very attractive exhibit.

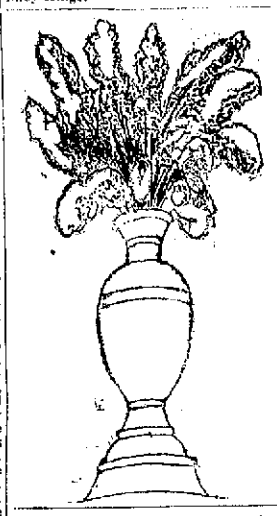

The exhibit of plants from Fancher Creek nursery contains, among others, Chamærops palms, Sequoia sprigs, Sago palms, and many sub-tropical varieties. Other meritorious displays are the raisins by Gordon & Grant, raisins and figs by F. H. Ball, E. J. Howard and F. J. Dow.

The overflow exhibit includes wines, red-woods, sugar pines, sweet corn, and two sunflowers fifteen feet high, with seed pods a foot in diameter. Redwood doors, polished and unpolished, show what can be done with this splendid wood. An unpolished sugar pine door is near by, in striking contrast. Over it hangs a bunch of peanuts, big enough to furnish a square meal for a Mormon family in good standing.

The mineral exhibit shows sixteen different kinds and varieties of iron ore, and there is an equally diversified display of other ores.

The Italian chestnuts in a frame are a striking and unique exemplification of the resources of the county.

Before the visitor leaves, it is well to take in the general effect from the gallery in the interior of the big dome. Fresno's display is then at his feet, and the contrast with the exhibits of other counties is markedly shown. A word of justice will, however, be necessary for Baby Kings.

This county has one very attractive design. It is a bear, life-size, covered with a coat of dried raisins, hugging a tree stump, on the top of which is a golden county cup. If little King's does not get the cup it will certainly not be because it has failed to "claim everything" according to the approved democratic apophthegm.

The Baby King's raisin exhibit is a fine sample of decorative work. The design, "Luceme Vineyard," is beautifully worked out, and even if Kings is a baby county the San Joaquin valley should be mightily proud of it.

The restaurateurs and concessionaires generally are anxiously looking for the coming of the Fresnoans and the people from the valley counties. Of the merits of the fair generally and the sideshows in particular I prefer not to speak. They have no connection with this article, and as there is unhappily a bitter controversy as to the merits or demerits of the fair, the best way will be for everyone to see and judge for himself and herself. That the fair is worth seeing goes without saying. It is not likely to be duplicated on this coast during the present generation.
